Implicit Consent

In some situations, it may be appropriate to provide participant information without requiring a consent form which identifies the participant. An example might be if you are asking someone to answer a few questions anonymously at an exhibition. As long as you make it clear that participation is voluntary, agreeing to answer questions anonymously (verbally or by completing a questionnaire) can be regarded as implying consent to participate. However, the participant information provided should still meet the standards set out in the sections above.
